Canada appears to have been complicit in propagating evil globally for over 2 centuries, including even the assassination of two presidents, and the corruption of the 2020 presidential election. We are about to be exposed.

God have mercy on us. PDF

1 Canada, The "Nice" Peace-Keeper

Most Canadians, and many people in other nations still believe that Canadians are "nice". Perhaps most Canadians even try to live up to this expectation.

Unfortunately, it is becoming clear – and will become shockingly more clear in the coming days and weeks – that Canada hasn't been just the "innocent bystander" to evil that we have been led to believe.

It appears that some have used Canada as a safe haven and launching point to export evil abroad. If this is indeed true, every true Canadian should be appalled. Lets review some evidence.

1.1 The Appearance of Innocence

"Appear weak when you are strong, and strong when you are weak." – Sun Tzu

Canadians are renowned the world over as being reliable, trustworthy and generally moral.

If this appearance of innocence and harmlessness can be maintained, Canada could be a very useful staging area for evil powers.

The removal of world leaders who do not serve the will of the global elite seems to be one area where "Canadians" appear to have excelled. If these claims are true, then these false Canadians must be discovered, rooted out and condemned.

1.2 The Lone Gunman Theories, Debunked

Both Lincoln and Kennedy were killed by "lone gunmen" who were then quickly and conveniently murdered. The official narrative is that these were just sorry individuals who carried out these assassinations without the assistance of any more deeply connected conspiracists.

What we as Canadians have not been told is both concerning and frightening. From Understanding the Tri-Fold Nature of the Deep State, the nature of Canada's involvement in evil begins to emerge from the mist.

1.2.1 1864: John Wilkes Boothe's Canadian Paymaster

You might have missed the lesson in your Canadian History class in high school, where you were informed that:

a $550 note was found on Boothe's body with the signature of Ontario Bank president Henry Starnes which the failed actor would have received during his October 1864 stay in Montreal. What I did not mention is that Booth stayed at the St Lawrence Hall Hotel which served as primary headquarters for the Confederacy from 1863-65. Describing the collusion of Northern Copperheads, anti-Lincoln republicans, and Wall Street agents, Sheehy writes: "All of these powerful northerners were at St. Lawrence Hall rubbing elbows with the Confederates who used the hotel as an unofficial Headquarters. This was the universe in which John Wilkes Booth circulated in Canada.

The Confederate Secret Service was given aid and comfort by Canada, and financed with British money to undermine the US "Greenback", leading ultimately to it being "backed" by British Pounds, and finally undermined to make way for the 1913 Federal Reserve Act.

Are these claims true? If not, who signed the $550 note drawn on a Canadian bank? Was it forged?

Are the historical claims of Confederates using Montreal as a staging ground true? If so, why has Canada not disavowed support for the racist slave-owning Confederacy?

1.2.2 1960: Lee Harvey Oswald Canadian Organizer

The law firm of the Bronfman family employed Louis Mortimer Bloomfield, until his CIA ties were exposed by Charles de Gaulle after a failed assassination attempt. He was also the primary shareholder of the Canadian company Permindex.

As New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison demonstrated in his book On the Trail of the Assassins (1991), Kennedy's murder was arranged by a complex assassination network that brought into play Southern secret intelligence assets in Louisiana, and Texas, Wall Street financiers, and a strange assassination bureau based in Montreal named Permindex under the leadership of Maj. Gen. Louis Mortimer Bloomfield.

After the Warren Commission (apparently consisting exclusively of people who hated Kennedy) "confirmed" that a simple, poor "lone gunman" killed Kennedy, Garrison's investigation into counter-claims was mysteriously cut short:

Garrison had other evidence linking Ferrie et al. to the Kennedy murder. In February 1964, a Winnipeg businessman overheard a conversation between a man (whom he later identified "100 percent positive" David Ferrie) and another man (tentatively identified as Major Louis Bloomfield) in the Winnipeg International Airport: The topic of the conversation was the successful completion of the assassination plot against Kennedy. The businessman reported the conversation to the FBI, who several months later told him he should forget about the episode as it was "too big," and "we can't protect you in Canada." When the businessman saw David Ferrie's picture in the paper with a report of the Garrison investigation, he reported the incident anew, and gave an interview on the exchange to MacLeans magazine. A massive campaign was mounted by the Justice Department to quash the Garrison investigation. Not only had 17 key witnesses died before they could take the stand. . . .

According to The Permindex Connection (above), and The Kennedy Assassination by Dean Henderson, the Canadian Permindex company was ultimately the organization that trained and fielded the snipers.

Kennedy was scheduled to speak at the Dallas Trademart, a Permindex affiliate, the day he was gunned down. After the Kennedy assassination Permindex morphed into Intertel, . . . Intertel is officially a subsidiary of Resorts and its board included Howard Hunt buddy Edward Mullin of FBI Division Five, the president of the Bronfman family-controlled Royal Bank of Canada, David Belisle of NSA and Sir Randolph Bacon, former head of Scotland Yard.

More recently, the Bronfman family's Seagrams empire windfall has met with hard times through bad investments – including funding the US based NXIVM sex cult with hundreds of millions of dollars.

If highly connected Canadian families did not have any involvement in Kennedy's assassination, then it should be simple to prove that Permindex had no CIA ties, and did not field trained snipers, correct?

2 Hammer & Scorecard; Elections for Sale?

Big Tech's Drive to End Democracy reviews the case against global electronic voting machine makers. Most urgently, in the 2020 Presidential election, many questionable results involve the Canadian company Dominion Voting Systems:

Among those states where this software runs the vote reading and counting, is included every single swing state now subject to recounts and court investigations such as Nevada, Arizona, Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin, Georgia and Pennsylvania.

2.1 The Creation of Dominion Voting Systems

According to Shocking History of Dominion Voting, the company is headquartered in Toronto in the offices of the radical Tides Foundation. It was basically created by the Obama administration, and went "from nothing to everything in two weeks" in 2010:

It is not clear what products or services the company has developed. It found almost no buyers, until Obama was elected in 2008. In 2009, New York ordered a few dozens of systems from it. In 2010, Obama's DOJ (Holder – Mueller) took the EVS unit, purchased from Diebold, away from the market leader ES&S, and gave it to Dominion. This gift included the installed base of about 30% of the US electronic voting systems (EVS) market. Within two weeks, Dominion also acquired Sequoia, which was formally spun from Smartmatic, but ties between these two companies remained. Smartmatic is a UK based EVS vendor, whose software was used by Chavez to "win" the Venezuelan referendum in 2004. Smartmatic's unit Sequoia faced troubles in the US. Those troubles quickly ended when its assets were purchased by Dominion.

Thus, the new Democratic party created a pocket pet corporation, gave it the lion share of the US electronic voting systems market. Dominion is ideologically aligned with the Democratic Party, owes it everything it has, dependent on it for most of its business, and needs it in power to avoid prosecution for corruption. Sounds like a conflict of interest.

2.2 Hammer & Scorecard

All this was done to "cleanse" the Smartmatic assets, to allow their use in future US elections:

Smartmatic is a UK based EVS vendor, whose software was used by Chavez to "win" the Venezuelan referendum in 2004. Smartmatic's unit Sequoia faced troubles in the US. Those troubles quickly ended when its assets were purchased by Dominion.

Around the same time, CIA assets "THE HAMMER" and "SCORECARD" were acquired by the Obama administration. In Lt. Gen. McInerney Explains the Election Hack by Democrats,

The General described “Hammer” and “Scorecard,” a pair of programs initially designed for the CIA before being privatized by Deep State players from the Obama administration. We explained how they work in an article last week, but the gist is this: “Hammer” or “THE HAMMER” is a counter-intelligence surveillance program used to spy on activities on protected networks (like voting machines) without detection while “Scorecard” is a vote-manipulation application that changes votes during transfer. It’s the least detectable form of election manipulation because it works during data transfer between voting stations and data storage hubs. Unless both sides are looking for irregularities, it’s impossible to catch. If nefarious forces had people on one side or the other (or both) during data transfer, it cannot be.

3 Canadians: Patsies again?

It appears that Canadians have been used for centuries by foreign powers as convenient patsies to destabilize the world.

Are we being used again?

If Dominion Voting Systems is not owned by Venezuelans sympathetic to Mr. Maduro, and is not headed by Soros’ proxy Malloch, these claims should be simple to falsify. If found to be true, however, should Dominion Voting Systems be used by Canadians, or anyone else? If so, why?

3.1 Could It Be a Setup?

On September 12, 2018, President Trump signed Executive Order on Imposing Certain Sanctions in the Event of Foreign Interference in a United States Election that largely went unnoticed. It declared a National Emergency, make election fraud a serious offence.

If indeed a Canadian company is involved in US election fraud, any US residents involved could be charged with Treason.

This could get very interesting, very quickly.
